The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 7-11, 13, 14, 16, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Skarbo et al.

Skarbo discloses the use of screen saver techniques that are activated when a user-specified time period has passed after the last input event to the system, such as keyboard action or a mouse click and screen savers are usually deactivated once an input device such as a keyboard or mouse is used again, col. 1, lines 20-25. Regarding claim 2, Skarbo discloses that his screen saver is used in conjunction with a video conferencing system. Video conferencing systems use audio and video and even some data, and therefore qualify as telephony. Therefore, it is inherent that there is some means in Skarbo that is reporting that the user is not present at her PC, and some type of message is being sent thru the telephony system to the screen saver to turn it off. Regarding claims 3 & 5, Skarbo discloses, col. 5, lines 40-45, the system in which their teleconferencing may be used includes LAN, WAN, & the Internet. And, the Internet is a packet-switched network utilizing TCP/IP.

Claims 6, 12, 15, and 17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
